

Summer Bridge 2011

Urban Scholars' Academy

June 21-August 5, 2011

You have taken the first step by applying to the University of the District of Columbia and choosing to experience college life in a dynamic urban setting.

The Urban Scholars' Academy Summer Bridge reinforces the University's commitment to excellence by engaging you in a stimulating learning environment, while providing opportunities to make connections to fellow students and professors before the fall semester begins.

As a Summer Bridge participant, you will:

- receive personalized attention and academic tutoring
- learn more about future careers and graduate programs in your field of study or focus on the STEM disciplines (biology, chemistry, physics, engineering, computer science, environmental science and mathematics)
- enjoy exciting social activities every Friday and a once-in-a-lifetime weekend retreat
- avoid lines during new student orientation with early registration
- earn while you learn! (you will receive a stipend to compensate for lost summer wages.)
- get a head start in academics with the option of taking two three credits during the program for eligible participants or by enrolling in two non-credit academic preparation courses

Application Process & Eligibility

You are eligible for Urban Scholars' Academy if you have applied to UDC for the Fall 2011 semester and have gained admission to a four-year degree program.

All applicants are advised to fill out the 2010-2011 and 2011-2012 FASFA. www.fasfa.ed.gov

"During my first week of the fall semester I already knew the campus, was connected to my academic advisor, had friends and knew where to go to get help with my classes."

Kim Capies, Class of 2014

"I did well in my Foundations in Writing class because of the summer preparation I had. I also made DEANS LIST!" Paige Mayhew, Class of 2014
