Mayor Vincent C. Gray Proclaims September 29th

Mayor Vincent C. Gray has issued a proclamation declaring Saturday, September 29th a “Day of Service” in the District of Columbia. The proclamation encourages D.C. residents to volunteer their time to fight hunger and food insecurity that day.

The College of Agriculture, Urban Sustainability and Environmental Sciences (CAUSES) has identified small urban farming worksites throughout the District as well as garden sites on our own Van Ness campus.

We will meet on the Dennard Plaza at 9:00 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 29th to receive site maps and a list of tasks that need our attention at each of the sites. These tasks may include harvesting vegetables, fixing fences, clearing walk ways and other assigned tasks by the coordinator.

Let’s make a difference and fight hunger by improving food security for underserved residents in the District of Columbia.
