Value of Clubs

Characteristics of Successful 4-H Clubs

Program Planning
- 4-H’ers are involved in club programming
  The club’s program is complete with dates set for meetings, names of people responsible and other pertinent information.

Curriculum
- Club meetings are composed of a variety of learning activities (guest speakers, youth presentations/demonstrations, group planning and recreation)
  4-H’ers may work together in small project groups which provide additional learning experiences for club members in addition to the regular meetings.

The entire family is welcome to be active in club activities.

Incorporated into the club plan are “doing” experiences for members to work together during the year: community service projects, field trips, project work, etc. Club members participate in District of Columbia 4-H events, activities and programs.

Leadership
- 4-H’ers deliver a percentage of club programs (teach/conduct activities and programs)
  Each 4-H officer has some leadership responsibility during a meeting or between meetings (lead pledges, help younger 4-H’ers, phone members to remind them of meetings, etc.)
